Scene

The scene begins as Drake, Mike, and Melisa are in the cafeteria with their bookbags, eating their dinner meal. Drake mentions the senior capstone presentation they needed to work on due next week. Mike and Melisa acknowledge, the three finish their meal and head off exiting the cafeteria.

As they exit the building and walk towards the Harbert building they cross upon a strange man wearing all black with his hoodie on. Without questioning the man on the dark clear night the three continue their path towards the building at the end.

Reaching the Harbert Building, the three enter and walk up the stairs to the third floor. As they leave the stair they move towards the end of the hall and enter a computer lab. Sitting down the three begin to work on the capstone. Drake worked on the slides, Melisa worked on the reassembled portion, and Mike presented the work amongst the group.

As time passed Drake and Mike received a group chat alert from their RA mentioning "Please return to your dorms immediately" Shortly after Melisa received the same message in her group chat. Since the group phones were on silent and tucked away in their own book bag no messages were read. Once more another message from the principal states all buildings will be in lockdown as there has been an intruder entering the campus.

Half an hour goes by and Melisa reaches for her bookbag, for her phone. Ignoring the message at first she notices a red alert on her phone regarding the intruder. As red as a tomato, she rushed to tell Drake and Mike about the news. Interpreting the news the three duck down and tuck away under their desk as frightened as they are.

Drake, being the more protective and brave being, gets up from underneath the table and tells the two the intruder is probably gone and to get to their dorms. The two still hiding from the seat terrified Drake leaves the computer room and enters the hallway. Stepping foot outside the room Drake tells the two to come over. Mike and Melisa follow up on Drake's ambition and the group leaves the class.

As they walk towards the dark hallways passing each pitch black offices and classroom they approach the stair. As Mike spammed the elevator button and looked out the window there seemed to be a blackout as there were no lights inside or outside the buildings, Mike became even more terrified. The group decided to take the stairs again going down holding onto the railway as they stepped a foot down. Approaching the exit of the stairs the group tries to exit the building but when Drake tried opening the door the doors were shut in and the group were locked in.

As the group tried to find ways to leave every exit were closed, there was no way out. Drake, getting tired of waiting for someone to come, finds a chair and smashes it into the door. Repeatedly smashing the chair the chair leg breaks and the door cracks open as the window cracks. Struggling to open the door, Drake pitted the door handle and it opened. Drake and Melisha left the Harbert building. Forgetting about Mike...

Entering the outside, the two couldn't see much beside themselves and whatever was underneath them. As the two quietly and sneakily approach the end they pass the cafe and go up the stairs. Melisa sees a blood trail leading towards the cafe. Unknown of where Drake and Mike are, she follows the trails into the cafe entering the building. The doors were locked behind her without sight of anyone.

Unknowingly Drake still continues passing the cafe and approaching the dorms. As he steps foot towards the entrance he looks back for the other two thinking Melisa must have returned to her dorm and Mike was behind. As Drake approaches the dorms door, the doors are locked, shut without his ID card.

Drake remembered the window was opened when he first left the building. Approaching the window towards the back of the dorm he steps foot into the window and into his dorm with no sight of Mike but an individual in front of him. The window shuts behind him and as Drake calls for Mike, the strange man approaches. The man breathing on his neck from above, Drake was able to see the strange black clothed wearing a hoodie, he first saw in the morning, in front of him and not Mike.
